William Barclay "Bat" Masterson was a figure of the Old West known as a buffalo hunter, US Army Scout, Gambler, Frontier Lawman and US Marshal. Raised on farms in Quebec, New York, and Illinois, he finally settled near Wichita, Kansas. His first gunfight took place in Sweetwater, Texas in 1876, when he was attacked by a man in a fight allegedly because of a girl. The other man died of his wounds but Masterson recovered from his wound to the pelvis. He later was an officer on the Dodge City Peace Commission in June, 1883, where he served with Wyatt Earp, Luke Short, and others. While serving in Dodge City as the Ford County Sheriff, his brother Ed was Marshal of Dodge City. Ed was killed in the line of duty April 9, 1878, and Bat responded and killed a cowboy by the name of Jack Wagner.
